1. I advised [REDACTED] that he had been selected for the Naval War College in lieu of the Army War College. While I think that he would have preferred going to the Army War College, he nevertheless seemed very pleased to be going to the Naval War College.

2. [REDACTED] telephoned to say that they expected to complete the tables which the Bureau of the Budget asked for in connection with our apportionment hearings by Monday or Tuesday. He is also sending up for my review the materials supplied by the Offices of Personnel and Training. I have already seen that supplied by the Office of Communications.

3. [REDACTED] telephoned to say that the Office of Current Intelligence would like to reserve parking spaces at the new building for supergrades, physically handicapped people, and certain liaison officers who use their cars on business and who are in and out of the building several times a day. This would add up to eighty or ninety parking spaces. I told him that this sounded reasonable as a starter. (I told [REDACTED] about this conversation.) H

5. I visited the new building where the move seems to be going as well as can be expected. The instant power generator is working. The Office of Current Intelligence is moving and the Watch Office expects to switch over at about 0800 Saturday morning. I have checked with the Office of Communications and they seem satisfied that there will be no problem in making the change. I also visited the OCI printing plant where I talked with [REDACTED] who assured me that they were ready to go into business and that there would be no interruption in service from OCI. H

6. Matt Baird telephoned to say that he was greatly shocked at [REDACTED] attitude toward [REDACTED] at the Career Council Meeting yesterday, 21 September. I told him that I, too, was greatly surprised and we agreed that when Bob returns to duty we will have a frank talk with him about this matter.
